

2. What are Acupunctur Meridians?

Acupunctur meridians are invisible energy pathways in your body that have been used therapeutically for over 5000 years. These meridians conduct life-force energy, or Qi (pronounced "chee") in and around all the parts of your body. Blockage or interference in these meridian pathways can result in energetic imbalances that may contribute to negative health consequences. The primary goal of acupuncture is to restore energetic balance and proper energy flow to these meridians, thus allowing your body to function normally, and return to health naturally.

3. How can AcuGraph Help Me?

The AcuGraph system allows your provider to measure and analyze the energy balance of each of your acupuncture meridians. Armed with this information, your provider can make better-informed decisions about your condition, and provide the best treatment possible.

Ancient Wisdom Meets Cutting Edge Technology

Your healthcare provider uses the AcuGraph® Digital Meridian Imaging system as part of an integrated approach to your healthcare. This brochure will give you more information about the role of AcuGraph in your care and why your provider has chosen to use this equipment.

1. What is AcuGraph?

The AcuGraph Digital Meridian Imaging system is a computerized tool used to analyze and document the energetic status of the acupuncture meridians. Your healthcare provider will use the system in a short examination by touching a moistened probe to acupuncture points on your hands and feet.

4. What Does my P.I.E. Score Mean?

Within the P.I.E. (Personal Integrated Energetics) chart, each wedge of the circle represents one meridian pathway. Those shown in green are balanced and functioning properly. Colors that do not extend to the edge of the circle identify and classify your meridian energy imbalances.

Your P.I.E. score includes a complete analysis of all your meridian pathways and reflects the overall health of your meridian energy system. A high score reflects good balance and unimpeded flow of your Qi energy. A lower score means there are various imbalances that you and your healthcare provider should address together.

P.I.E. scores are out of a total of 100.
